

Atelier Heritage

Introducing Atelier Heritage, combining specialist research with architectural knowledge; we offer commercially viable solutions to built heritage projects.

Adding Heritage Value

Atelier Heritage can help realise the potential of historic buildings by providing architectural research, assessments of significance, heritage statements and options studies for the reuse of listed buildings and those in conservation areas.

St Mary's Church, Hulme - Residential

Our expertise is based on experience and specialist knowledge. Ray Makin's 30 year membership and chairmanship of Manchester's Conservation and Historic Buildings Panel, combined with our extensive architectural track record, gives Atelier an unrivalled credibility in working with historic buildings.

Laura Jessup

Atelier Heritage can quickly determine the significant features of a historic building, ensuring refurbishment and redevelopment proposals are informed by the building's importance. We can produce heritage statements based on accurate historical research and a clear design process, an approach which is likely to result in a faster, more successful, outcome. We can also offer design guidance if required.

We recognise the level of detail required by local authorities. The efficiency savings on time and resources we can offer has led other design teams to commission Atelier Heritage to assist with historical assessments, conservation reports and heritage statements: we have recently worked with a variety of architects, planners, surveyors, interior designers and local authorities.

The addition of Laura Jessup to our team has enabled us to further develop our heritage services. Laura has a BA and an MA in the History of Art, Design and Architecture, and previous experience at Urban Splash and Ancoats Building Preservation Trust (later Heritage Works). She has significantly improved the depth of our historical research and the range of services we can offer to other professionals.

Afflecks Palace, Manchester - Commercial

Atelier Heritage is pleased to quote for any historical research and the writing of heritage statements anywhere in the UK and for any size of project; whether we are the architects for the project or not. We can also offer experienced architectural support and guidance to help inform the design process.
